THE GREAT STORM

THE CONTINENT.

Heavy falls of snow are reported from the French provinces, and in many parts railway and telegraphic communication has been stopped. It is stated that at the villages round Nimes the wolves have made their appearance in considerable numbers, and that hunting parties have been organised to exterminate them. Several villages and hamlets in France are snowed up. During three days Madrid has been without communication with the rest of Europe, and even with the rest of the Peninsula. Heavy rains, lasting almost the whole week, have stopped the trains in Northern Spain detaining some of the mails forty-eight hours. In the Ebro Valley the country was in several places flooded many leagues in extent. A vast amount of damage has been done to the agricultural districts and the live stock. Considerable damage has also been done to the telegraph and the railway bridges. Several towns, such as Burgos, Salamanca, and Cordova, were invaded by the waters. Near Cadiz and on the coast of Galicia, Asturias, and Biscaya there have been wrecks and loss of life. Relief has been sent by the Government to several districts.

A meeting in favour of restoring independence to the Boers was held in London yesterday afternoon. Captain Verney in the chair. After remarks from Sir Charles Trevelyan and others, a resolution was passed to the effect that the meeting, desiring to promote by all legitimate means the re-establishment of the independence of the Transvaal, agrees to form itself into an association for the purpose of disseminating accurate information on the subject, under the name of the Transvaal Independence Committee.

ANTICIPATED ATTACK ON THE HULME CAVALRY BARRACK.

Manchester, Jan. 19th. Evidences are not wanting that in this city at least an organisation exists which has for one of its main objects the subversion of public authority by acts of violence and crime. Rumour was waited to the ears of the military authorities at the Hulme Cavalry Barrack that an attack was intended, having for its object the seizure of the arms and ammunition stored in its magazine there. The barrack, which is now occupied by the 18th Hussars, covers a wide area of ground, and being surrounded by a mass of low-class property, interested in every direction with courts and passages, offers opportunities for easy approach to and departure from the walls of the enclosure, where a similar attempt to that in Regent Road might be made. On receiving this information, the commanding officer turned out his men, doubled every guard, and posted additional sentries at short intervals round the interior of the barrack square. Information was likewise given to the police, and Mr C. Malcolm Wood, the acting chief constable, who held a consultation on the spot with the military officers, detached twenty police constables to carefully watch the streets and lanes affording access to the barrack. After dusk no one was allowed to enter the precincts of the soldiers' quarters without express permission, and all persons approaching the gates were challenged and required to give the countersign before entrance was allowed. The authorities are fully persuaded that their precautions have not been in vain or uncalculated for. Inquiries made in the neighbourhood reveal the fact that on Friday evening three men, perfect strangers, were seen by a woman residing near the entrance gate, apparently examining the building as carefully as they could owing to the dense fog. Having loitered about for some time with no ostensible purpose, they went off in the direction of the Chester Road. The precautionary measures are still in full force, particular attention being directed to the magazine, where, as we are informed, enough powder and ammunition is stored to destroy half the houses within several hundred yards in case of an explosion.

In order to supply the place of the men sent into the colliery districts of Tyldesley and Atherton, two additional troops of the 18th Hussars arrived at the barrack yesterday, from Liverpool.

STATE OF IRELAND.

Our Manchester correspondent states: "Nothing has transpired to-day (Monday) to throw any further light upon the outrage at the Salford barracks, and no arrest has been made. An active search is being made for the two men who deposited the parcels at a 'beerhouse' in the locality, and fetched them away shortly before the explosion. A description of the men has been circulated. This seems to be the only clue that the police have to the perpetrators of the outrage. The injured woman is likely to recover. Nearly all the Irishmen in the city and in Salford joined the Parnell Defence Organization, and the committee of that fund, at a meeting held to-day (Monday), emphatically repudiated any connection with the outrage.

The rifles belonging to the 2nd Northumberland Rifle Volunteers have been brought to Berwick, and stored in the armoury of the barracks, under the charge of the 4th Fusiliers. This precaution has been adopted in consequence of the present Fenian scare.

Sentries have been placed on duty night and day at Maclesfield Volunteer Drill Hall and Armoury, where 400 stand of arms and a quantity of ammunition are stored. The breach blocks have been removed from the rifles.

In consequence of an intimation received from London the armoury of the 1st Gloucestershire Artillery Volunteers at Bristol is now being watched every night to prevent any outrage similar to that perpetrated at Salford.

Four men named James Fennelly, David Keogh, Edmund Murphy, and Thomas Shirley, were charged at Stoneyford (county Kilkenny) Petty sessions yesterday with attempting to intimidate Edmund Brady from selling sheep at Bennett's Bridge on December 21st, and also to prevent John Kelly from buying. Prisoners pleaded guilty, and were fined 1s. and costs each.

James McNamara, Lennihila, has been expelled from the Lincasy Land League for having, in opposition to the resolution of the league, taken possession of a farm which was surrendered six months ago by a farmer named Clancy, on account of exorbitant rent. McNamara has applied for police protection.

The Kildysart Land League yesterday passed resolutions calling upon members to pledge themselves not to elect persons as Poor Law guardians who were not staunch supporters of the league. A radical change will be effected at the next election if this resolve be adhered to.

On Sunday, the Rev Mr Ryan, O.C., Castledermot (Carlow) on arriving at Levinstown Chapel, to officiate at mass, found the doors had been nailed up, and the congregation assembled outside the chapel gates. When the rev. gentleman forced an entrance, the congregation would not follow him, but went to mass at another chapel some miles distant. It is alleged that the rev. gentleman had given offence by using strong language in a recent sermon on the relations subsisting between the Duke of Leinster and his tenants.

Mr Benice Jones and family left Clonality for England yesterday, after arranging that the farm should be managed in his absence by an attorney. Mr Jones will not return to Ireland until the present agitation subsides.

A strange scene was witnessed on Sunday at a land meeting held at Kilbrin, a rural district midway between Charleville and Kanturk. Previous to the meeting a black coffin, having the inscription 'Landlordism' in large capitals, was borne on the shoulders of four men, with a large crowd following, hissing. The supposed corpse having come to a grave, which was dug for the purpose, the coffin, amidst a scene of great excitement, was hurled in, and the grave closed up. It is stated that a similar scene was enacted there during O'Connell's 'Burial of the Tithes.' At the close of the proceedings loud cheers were given for Mr Parnell and the Land League.

Mr Patrick Spillane, secretary of the Skibbereen branch of the Land League, has been summoned to attend before the Skibbereen bench, to answer a charge of having written and sent a letter requiring Mrs Maria Long, of Aughdown, to surrender her farm.

Captain Pin Moate, a magistrate residing near Moate, on Saturday received a letter threatening him with death if he did not immediately discharge from his employment a servant whom he had engaged a month previous. Captain North, in giving information to the police, expressed his readiness to keep the servant, but the latter refused to stay, and left.

THE CURMALAN LANDS

Sir In your issue of the 16th inst. I see mentioned in a letter under the above heading that it is proposed to import 100 stallions, each to cover 100 mares. Now some years since a friend of mine in Ireland, who had a very valuable sire, wrote to the veterinary college in Paris to know what was the greatest number of mares a stallion could cover in one season; the answer was 80, but that 60 was quite enough to give to any horse. From own experience, 60 is as many as any horse should be put to, and that, mind, in Ireland or England where he has the advantage of being cared by an experienced groom, besides being in his native country. I am inclined to think that an imported horse would not be so vigorous, owing to change of climate and inferior food, care, etc. he would receive here to sum up, 40 or at the most 50 mares are quite enough for an imported horse.

As I am writing you, I may as well mention a fact that I think is not generally known here; that in the U. States they possess the cream of the English breed of short horns; they have been for many years importing from England breeding cattle of the purest strains, the demand there is not equal to the supply of pure bred stock, consequently bulls and cows with pedigrees equal to any imported can be purchased there at, when compared to English prices, very low figures. I have seen some of the stock imported from the United States into Jamaica, as fine cattle as you could see in England, at very moderate prices; for instance a fine 3 year old bull for £40 (cost price in the United States). They have a regular herd-book there and you can obtain with each beast its pedigree, tracing its descent to its English progenitors. I have written to a friend in Philadelphia who has the most prize-taking strain in America, advising him to advertise his stock here.

A few years since several buyers from England attended a sale of short horns in the United States, and if I remember rightly a heifer was purchased there for an English Nobleman at the enormous price of £8,000.

I think it would repay Mr Nash, if he took a trip to the States and saw for himself the stock.

Faithfully yours
Effel.

MONTEVIDEO.

Dear Standard, The traditional political parties of the Banda Oriental are in a feverish activity, which betrays the latent vitality of the dictatorship could not destroy. These parties strive to attain one grand object—the Government of the country. Their political programme is identical; the individuals alone are different; they bear the historical names of the past, and with them the records of civil strife and every bloody deed in the Banda Oriental. There is a move to obliterate these objectionable names, which resuscitate the rancour of 12 years, the jealousies and animosities of the past. Verily the Blancos and the Colorados may boast a history which would terrify the impartial reader. Who can ever forget the days when bands of gauchos galloped through our picturesque hamlets, committing the most brutal acts of cruelty and coolly butchering their defenceless antagonists as they lay prostrate in some distant ditch after vain attempts to escape from the hands of the assassin. Let us hope those times have passed for ever, never to come again. This day, 13 years ago, Venancio Flores was fully murdered in the streets of Montevideo, and the political meetings of the present parties throw a darker shade on that black page of Banda Oriental history.

The Banda Oriental has certainly greatly changed since the epoch of Flores's death; the same sanguinary element does not predominate, but any political error may yet revive that element and throw a darker gloom on the present than the crimes of days gone by could on the past.

Experience has taught us that the country is not proof against such trials and that it needs a Latore to summon the people to their senses; and when arguments are thrown over the bayonet is seized, the question is to be or not to be. To-day the Government is effeminate, and in any other country under the sun the present men in the Government House would have been kicked out to form a pedestal, to the ambition of some rising man; but every country does not produce men with brains, talent and energy to snatch the occasion, stifle conscience and seize the reins of power we so greedily aim at, and so foolishly seek in the fortunes of a bloody revolution, the abnormal features of any civilized community now-a-days.

It would be an ungrateful task to enquire into the causes that prostrate the Banda Oriental. The men who govern us should know best; with all their constitutional qualities they have improved the political situation of the country in one sense only. The people flatter themselves that Vidal is their President, but Vidal is not the President, but the Government so eloquently term a political masquerade; that the present parties try to shuffle off. All their activity only tends to create distrust; the Government cannot cope with the situation, and financiers are under zero. Soon the Blancos or the Colorados may try their skill in governing their country. We all foresee the course of events: there may be no revolution, no bloodshed, but the old policy will be resorted to by the vanquished party. Amour-propre will bring on abasement, and a bitter opposition will be carried on against every landable measure the new Government may attempt. How can you govern under such circumstances, when party strife stifles every patriotic thought, and the opposition distills treachery and distrust in every newspaper. The parties are neutralized for the present, and inabilities are stifled, as the Vidal Government places neither one or the other; but the retrograde element will tell the day that the present party mechanism comes into play and we rehearse the comedy of the last fifty years. Our patriotism is the sincere: abolish all salaries and you put a stop to all revolution and systematic opposition. Let the President, the Cabinet and the Legislature save the country for the sake of her honour, pay the judges instead, and the schoolmasters; then Banda Oriental may emerge from the present effete condition that is ruining both the individual and the country.
